PROTECTION IN FRANCE.

A Free-Trader's View of the Question. Copyrighted, 1889.

Paris, January 25, 1889.

The free trace policy was inaugurated in France by the commercial reaty cone uced with England in .850. It succeecec a protection regime to which the I' us rious Colpert ascattachechis name, and which had been in existence for wo centuries Colper's tariffs, which, if they did not institute, at least sys tematizec, this protective regime, were promugated in .664 and .367, and continued in force without a teration un-i the end of the eighteen in century. But a reaction in avor of free trace set in during the second had of the ast century, due to the inquence of the Paysiocrate, or Quesnay school, of holitica. economists, and the result was a commercia treaty with England in 1786.

which was heartily applauded, Grand Recorder W. T. Boyd of Denver was inproduced as the greatest takker in the order. Mr Boyd disc aimed any intention of seeking that comp iment, though he confessed that he was heart y in sympathy with, and thoroughly devo ed to the opiects and purposes of the order. Mr. Boyc then gave a brief synopsis of the order, what it was, and what it was seezing to accomplish. It was protectwe in every respect, and recognized a men as equa. Nothing of a sectar an or po i ca. nature was a oweo in its meetings, and the rich and the poor could meet on the same footing in the oage rooms of the Workmen. Mr. Boyd gave a brief account of the han of re ief followed by the order, which he considered infinitely auperior to tas. afforced by any insurance organization. Marga etta Carrolton Dickinson was born at Westchester, Pennsylvania, where she resided ument with her husband, with a view of making this blace her tuture home. Up to within a few nours of her death Mrs. Dickinson enjoyed the best of health, but for some months twe are tale) she had a presentment that her earthly career was nearing its end. She was fully resigned to the will of God, never once murmuring against the fate that to her seemed inevitable, her only wish being that if it was God's wilto take her, she asked as a special request, that her expected child might go with her. A merciful God granted her request for upon the bosom of the fair mother, whom even death could not rob of her beauty of mind and person, rests the babe whose first breath was his last, and too whom the wife in the supreme hour of first ne thermood yielded up her life that was so precious to her husband and it is tives, and who never realized in this world that her child was born.
